

EDA Timing Preparation Guide

Clock uncertainty is applied identically to the baseline arm and the custom-cell arm.

The final timing report must identify the routed database it was generated from. A custom cell counts as adopted only when the final routed database contains at least one effective instance.